Summer Water Aerobics at Lakengren Pool or An Unwanted Visitor - Baby Skunk

The water aerobics class got an unwanted visitor on July 14. During the exercises, Cheryl Taylor noticed something white and black and furry in the water. We looked closer and discovered it was a baby skunk. Liliana Islamovski was eager to get it out of the water but she was thinking it was a kitten. When she realized it was a skunk, she quickly moved away from it. Luckily, Ron Simons, a maintenance employee, was at the pool for another job and was called into service to get the baby skunk out of the water. He was successful in getting it out of the pool and the area, but not before it sprayed a couple of times. The ladies in the aerobics class might have gotten a little out of step but they never stopped moving. Now that is dedication.
